Specializing in:

- Investment strategy
- Asset allocation
- Portfolio construction

Meghan is responsible for helping manage the end-to-end asset allocation process, developing market research, and communicating the investment team's market outlook and positioning to clients and prospective clients. She is a member of the Investment Committee, which is responsible for deriving the firm's strategic and tactical asset allocation positioning.

Meghan also oversees the firm's portfolio construction process—including implementation of asset class views through a variety of proprietary, non-proprietary, passive, active, and factor-based solutions—and chairs the Portfolio Management Committee.

Prior to joining Wilmington Trust, Meghan was an investment strategist at Bessemer Trust, where she helped manage the asset allocation decision and implementation process, performed asset allocation and market research, and published pertinent thought leadership.

She holds an MBA with a concentration in finance from the University of Miami, where she was valedictorian of her graduating class. She also holds a bachelor's degree in engineering, with a concentration in operations research and financial engineering, from Princeton University.

Meghan is a regular CNBC contributor and is frequently quoted in financial media communicating the firm's economic and market views. She was also named to the American Banker's Most Powerful Women In Banking: Next 2022 list.*
