

Ciarán Sheehan

Ciarán Sheehan, a native of Dublin, Ireland, has performed the role of the Phantom (Raoul) in The Phantom of the Opera to critical acclaim both on Broadway and in Toronto, Canada. Other Broadway roles include Babet and Marius in Les Miserables.

Broadway concerts include Sir Dinadan in Camelot with Jeremy Irons, and Woody in Finian's Rainbow opposite Milo O'Shea. As a member of The Irish Rep, Ciarán has appeared in many of their productions including Hal Prince's Grandchild of Kings, and Frank McCourt's The Irish...And How They Got That Way.

Recent work includes Tone in The Final Days of Wolfe Tone and Billy Bigelow in Carousel in Boston receiving best actor nominations in Broadway World for both performances.

Film and TV work includes Law & Order, Honor Amongst Men (opposite Joan Jett), The Waiting Room (best actor NY International Film Festival winner), A Couple of Guys, The Only Woman In The World (multiple best actor nominations) and many others.

Ciarán has performed in four television specials for PBS: The Irish...And How They Got That Way, From Galway to Broadway, Ciarán an Evening With Friends, and most recently The Four Phantoms In Concert.