

Darren Slosberg
CEO
Legacy Converting

Darren Slosberg is CEO of Legacy Converting of Cranbury, NJ. He joined the company in 1997 to work alongside his father. At that time, the core business was packaging and other corrugated services. However, Darren had a vision of what the future of the company would look like. Along with his brother, he co-founded a new unit within their father's company which eventually became the business known today as Legacy. Today, their father's original business represents only a small piece of the overall operation. Legacy is a manufacturer and converter of innovative wiping products. Darren led the growth of the company to what has become a multi-million dollar provider of private label and branded lines of non-woven and paper disposable wiping products meeting needs of the medical, hospital, technology, and food service industries.

Darren has an impressive track record that includes:

- NJBIZ Forty Under 40 in 2013
- Inc. 500/5000: Fastest Growing Companies in America 2011, 2012, and 2013.
- Inc. Magazine: Ranked #1 as fastest growing manufacturer in NJ for 2011. Ranked #249 overall for 2011 with 1289% growth rate for 3 concurrent years.
- NJ Biz Magazine: NJ Biz "Business of the Year" winner, 2011, for company with under 50 employees.

He received a BA in Philosophy & Sociology from Brandeis University and is married to an attorney with 3 children.

<http://legacyconverting.com/>